ASIAN AMERICAN STUDIES (TRI-CO)

Department Website:
https://www.haverford.edu/asian-american-studies

Asian American Studies is a Tri-College program that offers a minor at all three colleges. The interdisciplinary curriculum is designed to help students develop an understanding of Asian American experiences, histories, cultures, and art. While the program centers Asian American experiences and perspectives, it also contextualizes Asian American Studies within the broader field of critical race and ethnic studies, with a focus on how race operates in the United States and intergroup relations between Asian Americans with other racial and ethnic minority groups. Asian American Studies provides rich interdisciplinary training in complex social and cultural issues pertaining to the study of race, ethnicity, and identity; migration and acculturation; intergroup relations; power and privilege; stereotyping and discrimination; and globalization. Studying the experiences of Asian Americans helps students to learn more about themselves and their relationships in an increasingly multiracial, multiethnic, and multicultural nation. Students are engaged in thinking deeply about concepts and theory, and relating those in applied ways to contemporary issues and problems in Asian American communities.

Learning Goals
• Gain competence in the theories and methods of the interdisciplinary study of Asian Americans.
• Contextualize how history has shaped the lives and experiences of Asian Americans, with relevance for contemporary issues and problems.
• Study and participate in creative expressions of Asian American experiences through literature, music, and dance.
• Examine the experiences of Asian Americans in the broader context of how race operates in the United States and understand intergroup relations with other racial and ethnic minority groups within the United States.
• Explore perspectives on Asian Americans from outside the United States taking a transnational or global view.

Haverford’s Institutional Learning Goals are available on the President’s website, at http://hav.to/learninggoals.

Curriculum
The Asian American Studies minor is a 6-credit minor and is composed of the following requirements: at least 3 core courses in Asian American Studies, at least 1 course in Comparative Race and Ethnic Studies, and no more than 1 course in Transnational and/or Global Connections with Asia. In lieu of specific required courses, the curriculum offers a balance of structure and rigor with reasonable flexibility in possible pathways for completing the minor. The Co-Directors of Asian American Studies will help students select courses that meet the requirements for the minor. Students’ minor experience will culminate with an annual Tri-College Asian American Studies symposium where seniors will present their work in various forms (e.g., music performance, poster presentation), reflecting the highly interdisciplinary nature of the program.

Students interested in the Asian American Studies Minor should plan their course schedule in consultation with one of the Co-Directors of Asian American Studies (one located at Haverford/Bryn Mawr, one located at Swarthmore).

Minor Requirements
The 6-credit minor is composed of the following requirements:

• At least 3 “Core Courses” in Asian American Studies. These courses have a substantive focus on Asian American experiences, histories, and cultures. Please find a current list of approved courses on the Asian American Studies website.

• At least 1 Course in Comparative Race and Ethnic Studies. These courses provide exposure to the experiences, histories, and cultures of other racial and ethnic groups in and of themselves, or in relation to other groups. Many courses that could meet this requirement are drawn from African and Africana Studies/Black Studies; Latin American, Iberian, and Latinx Studies; Gender and Sexuality Studies; and other departments. Students should discuss the course they wish to use for this requirement with one of the Co-Directors.

• 1 Course in Transnational or Global Connections with Asia. No more than one course that offers perspectives on Asian Americans from outside the United States with regard to history, literature, culture, or politics in order to explore transnational or global connections in a broader context. There are many non-language courses offered by East Asian Languages and Cultures/Asian Studies and other departments on Asian history, literature, culture, and politics from regional or global perspectives that could meet this requirement. Students should discuss the course they wish to use for this requirement with one of the Co-Directors.

Please note:
The six minor credits should cross over at least two divisions of the College (e.g., Humanities, Social Sciences, Natural Sciences, Independent Programs).

Senior thesis credit for an Asian American Studies topic may be counted towards the minor. Please discuss your senior thesis topic with one of the Co-Directors of Asian American Studies in advance.

No more than two credits from a single department can count towards the minor and no more than two of the six minor credits may double-count towards the student’s major. We wish to encourage thoughtful and intentional selection of courses for the Asian American Studies minor that help to expand a student’s academic exposure beyond what would have been gained through the major program of study as a matter of course.

Faculty
Below are the core Asian American Studies faculty. Many other faculty contribute courses to the program; see the Courses section for a full listing.

Core Faculty
Ruodi Duan
Assistant Professor, Department of History and Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures, Haverford College

Elizabeth Kim
Assistant Professor, Department of English, Haverford College

Lei Ouyang
Associate Professor, Department of Music, Swarthmore College; Co-Director of Tri-Co Asian American Studies Program (Swarthmore students can contact Prof. Ouyang about the program)

Vivian Truong
Assistant Professor, Department of History, Swarthmore College

Gina Velasco
Associate Professor, Director of Gender and Sexuality Studies, Haverford College

Shu-wen Wang
Associate Professor, Department of Psychology, Haverford College; *Co-Director of Tri-Co Asian American Studies Program (Haverford and Bryn Mawr students can contact Prof. Wang about the program)

Asian American Studies Courses
ASAM H339 ASIAN AMERICAN PSYCHOLOGY (1.0 Credit)
Shu-wen Wang
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
This seminar course addresses major theories and findings in Asian American Psychology, with a focus on immigration and acculturation, ethnic identity, stereotyping and discrimination, families and development, and mental health. Prerequisite(s): One 200 level PSYC course or permission from instructor (Offered: Fall 2024)

East Asian Languages and Cultures Courses
EALC H126 GLOBAL ASIAN DIASPORAS (1.0 Credit)
Ruodi Duan
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
This course examines the modern histories, politics, and cultures of Asian migration and diasporas, with a focus on American contexts. Between 1840 and 1940, Asian migrants—numbering in the tens of millions—set out in search of livelihoods and fortunes, especially in Southeast Asia and the Americas. We will look at how patterns of Asian migrations were propelled by and shaped world-historical dynamics including colonialism, globalization, racial formation, and the most contentious wars of the twentieth century. Crosslisted: EALC.

English Courses
ENGL H249 INTRODUCTION TO ASIAN AMERICAN LITERATURE (1.0 Credit)
Elizabeth Kim
Division: Humanities
Domain(s): A: Meaning, Interpretation (Texts); B: Analysis of the Social World
This course will explore the diversity of Asian American experience by studying a selection of foundational and emerging works by Asian American writers. Assigned readings of various literary genres will address themes such as immigration, generational conflict, racism, assimilation, difference, and political struggle. Key lines of inquiry include: What does Asian American identity, culture, and aesthetic look like? How do writers represent them? What does the racial and literary category “Asian American” constitute? Crosslisted: ENGL. Pre-requisite(s): None (Offered: Fall 2024)
ENGL H366  TOPICS IN AMERICAN LITERATURE: ASIAN AMERICAN HYBRIDITY (1.0 Credit)
Elizabeth Kim
Domain(s): A: Meaning, Interpretation (Texts)
(Offered: Spring 2025)

History Courses
HIST H119  INTERNATIONAL HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES (1.0 Credit)
Andrew Friedman
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): A: Meaning, Interpretation (Texts); B: Analysis of the Social World
This course surveys the international history of the United States in the 20th century. It encourages students to conceptualize U.S. history as a series of transnational encounters and systems that transcend national borders. Capitalism, the environment, postcolonialism and Third Worldism, "Atlantic crossings," modernity, imperialism, diaspora and migration, world war, travel, United Nations and "Our America" serve as organizing motifs. In considering the history of this country outside its formal borders, students will gain a facility with the languages of hemispheric and global imagining that structure the pursuit of contemporary U.S. history, while sharpening analytical skills working with primary texts.
(Offered: Spring 2025)

HIST H126  GLOBAL ASIAN DIASPORAS (1.0 Credit)
Ruodi Duan
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
This course examines the modern histories, politics, and cultures of Asian migration and diasporas, with a focus on American contexts. Between 1840 and 1940, Asian migrants—numbering in the tens of millions—set out in search of livelihoods and fortunes, especially in Southeast Asia and the Americas. We will look at how patterns of Asian migrations were propelled by and shaped world-historical dynamics including colonialism, globalization, racial formation, and the most contentious wars of the twentieth century. Crosslisted: EALC.

Peace, Justice and Human Rights Courses
PEAC H220  CASTE AND POWER (1.0 Credit)
Prea Persaud Khanna
Division: Humanities
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
This course explores the existence and effects of caste as a manifestation of power through several vectors such as religion, gender, class, etc.
(Offered: Fall 2024)

PEAC H329  AFRO-ASIAN SOLIDARITIES (1.0 Credit)
Prea Persaud Khanna
Division: Humanities
Domain(s): A: Meaning, Interpretation (Texts)
This interdisciplinary course analyzes the relationship between Black and Asian communities in the Americas, highlighting moments of solidarity and unity and areas of divergence and conflict. Moving from slavery to indentureship to U.S. immigration, particularly post 1960s, students will examine the rhetoric of the yellow peril, the myth of the model minority, the rise of Black Power movements, orientalist stereotypes, and anti-blackness within the Asian (inclusive of South Asian and Indo-Caribbean) community. Pre-requisite(s): PEAC 101 or 201 or consent of instructor Lottery Preference: PJHR, AFST, and FGSTC students
(Offered: Spring 2025)

Psychology Courses
PSYC B354  ASIAN AMERICAN PSYCHOLOGY (1.0 Credit)
Heejung Park
This course will provide an overview of the nature and meaning of being Asian American in the United States. We will examine the history, struggle, and success of Asian Americans, drawing upon psychological theory and research, interdisciplinary ethnic studies scholarship, and memoirs. Students will also learn to evaluate the media portrayal of Asian Americans while examining issues affecting Asian American communities such as stereotypes, discrimination, family relationships, dating/marriage, education, and health disparities. Prerequisite: Introduction to Psychology (Psych 105) is required, Research Methods and Statistics (Psych 205) is recommended..

PSYC H339  ASIAN AMERICAN PSYCHOLOGY (1.0 Credit)
Shu-wen Wang
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
This seminar course addresses major theories and findings in Asian American Psychology, with a focus on immigration and acculturation, ethnic identity, stereotyping and discrimination, families and development, and mental health. Prerequisite(s): One 200 level PSYC course or permission from instructor
(Offered: Fall 2024)

Writing Program Courses
WRPR H155  ORIGIN STORIES: IN THE WAKE OF WAR (1.0 Credit)
Theresa Tensuan
Division: First Year Writing
In this course we will read a range of origin stories--creation narratives, memoirs, alter/native accounts of settler colonialism, and trickster tales--that delineate constructions of identity and constitutions of community with a focus on the ways in which writers and artists represent ongoing “encounters” between indigenous and imperial cultures, examining inventive work that play with genres ranging from the lyric to the epic to speculative fiction as a means of offering new ways of understanding history and imagining the future. Open only to first-year students as assigned by the Director of College Writing. (Offered: Spring 2025)