The Political Science Department seeks to address issues of power, citizenship, government, and justice in the United States and throughout the world by studying the diversity of political life and thought in our own age and in the past. Our goal is to provide students with a deep understanding of the core concepts and practices of politics and government while developing the analytical, research, and writing skills that enable them to think critically and creatively about existing structures of power and privilege. In doing so, we hope to nurture a lifelong fascination and engagement with the political realm.

Haverford’s program is designed to provide an understanding of how and why decisions are made. For many students this knowledge serves as the foundation for participation in public affairs and the shaping of the policies that affect their communities and their personal lives. Many majors choose to go on to law school. Many others choose to go into government service, journalism, teaching, or community organizing, among other career pathways. Given that most of our classes are small enough to allow ample discussion and dialogue, students leave Haverford well equipped for those continuing discussions that determine the quality of life in our society.

Learning Goals
The Political Science Department provides students with an opportunity to explore politics and government from multiple vantage points—at the grassroots, the nation-state, and the global community—and from a variety of theoretical, conceptual, comparative, historical, and experiential perspectives.

We aim to:

• provide students with a broad background in the discipline of political science, including its multiple methods and subfields as well as substantive knowledge (i.e., facts, concepts, theories, etc.) about different debates and topics within the discipline.

• guide students so they can make pathways through the curriculum in ways that reflect an accumulation of learning and that help them develop a greater level of mastery over at least one body of scholarship within political science.

• cultivate critical, analytic and synthetic thinking about local, national, international and transnational politics, as well as about the nature of political power, governance, citizenship, and justice.

• help students acquire the skills of communication, collaboration, and listening necessary for effective participation within an intellectual community.

• train students to carry out sustained independent research.

• prepare students to become informed and reflective citizens who are knowledgeable about the forces that shape political life.

Haverford’s Institutional Learning Goals are available on the President’s website, at http://hav.to/learninggoals.

Curriculum
We offer courses in the five subfields of political science at the introductory, intermediate, and advanced levels. We coordinate our offerings with those at Bryn Mawr in order to provide a wide range of subjects.

Courses fall into the following five subfields:

• American Politics (A): major institutions; bureaucracy; discrimination; urban politics and urban policy; and ethnicity, gender, sexuality, and class in relation to American politics.

• Comparative Politics (C): politics and governments throughout the world; women and politics; comparative political economy; human rights; civil war and revolution; and transitions to democracy.

• International Relations (I): international political economy and international security; the state system; international organizations; causes of war, terrorism, peace-building, and reconciliation; and American foreign policy.

• Globalization and Global Governance (G): cosmopolitan theory; democracy and global governance; capitalism and its critics; global economy; global civil society and global justice movements.

• Political Theory (T): justice, equality, and liberty; power, authority, and order; democratic theory; American political thought; feminist theory; and politics and culture.

Major Requirements

• Two of the following 100-level courses to enter the major: POLS H121, POLS H131, POLS H151, POLS H161, and POLS H171. These courses must represent two different subfields.

• Six elective courses taken above the 100 level. No more than four of the elective courses for the major may come from institutions outside of the Tri-Co.
Senior Project

The senior thesis represents the capstone of the political science major. It is a year-long independent research project designed and implemented by each senior political science major with the guidance and support of an assigned thesis advisor. Students receive one credit for an advanced-level seminar in the fall semester of their senior year. With few exceptions, this seminar is taken with the student’s thesis advisor. During the fall semester seminar students select a research topic, formulate a research question, begin acquiring conceptual and theoretical sophistication through a comprehensive review of the relevant scholarly literature, and prepare a thesis proposal or research design. This proposal will guide each student’s original research during the spring semester. Near the end of the fall semester seniors submit their thesis proposals to all members of the department and present their thesis proposals before the department faculty and fellow students. These proposal defenses are intended to provide students with useful critical feedback during the fall semester when there is still time to make major adjustments to the project if necessary. They are also intended to build an esprit de corps among majors while giving them valuable experience with oral presentation and public accountability.

In the spring semester students register for POLS H400, a supervised research and writing course. During this semester, students conduct independent research and write up their findings with the guidance and feedback of their advisor. Throughout the spring semester students meet regularly with their thesis advisor and submit drafts of thesis chapters to their advisor. After students submit their final written theses in April, they are required to give a 30-minute oral defense of their theses to their advisor and at least one other political science faculty member in early May.

Senior Project Learning Goals

The goal of the thesis is to promote the ongoing acquisition of research and analytical skills, as well as the ability to carry out extensive projects independently and consistent with the highest standards of excellence. Most students writing a thesis will identify an interesting and important research question, explore how other scholars have attempted to address that question, and devise a viable research plan. Students who choose to concentrate in political theory pursue normative research and focus on interpretation and analysis of philosophical texts. Students are expected to conduct their own research, often using both primary and secondary sources, and to evaluate how their findings relate to existing scholarship in the field.

Senior Project Assessment

Students are assessed based upon their proposal, their written thesis, their oral defense, and their performance throughout the thesis process. They are evaluated according to several criteria, including:

• their conceptualization of a research question.
• their ability to effectively and concisely present their argument and findings.
• their ability to draw conclusions and extensions of their research to broader arenas.
• their engagement with secondary material and use of primary sources.
• their ability to identify, critique, develop, and apply core concepts and theories.
• their ability to obtain a basic understanding of research methodologies.
• their ability to comprehend and respond to questioning.
• the quality and organization of their writing.
• the timely submission of work and responsiveness to feedback.

Senior Project

A 300-level research seminar, taken in the department during the fall semester of the senior year. (This is in addition to the six elective courses described above.)

A combination of introductory and elective courses that includes representation of three of the five subfields, with work at the intermediate or advanced level in at least two subfields.

• Students may count some courses in either of the two subfields but not in both.

• With the consent of a member of the department, students may substitute two or three intermediate- or advanced-level courses from another department for the third subfield, where this serves to complement and strengthen the student’s work within the department. For example, a student concentrating in international politics might offer international economics courses as a subfield; a student in comparative politics might offer courses in an area study; a student in political theory might offer social and political philosophy courses; or a student in American politics might offer social policy courses. Students can count such substitutions towards fulfilling the subfield requirement only. They cannot count these towards political science course credit and cannot use them to fulfill the introductory, elective, and seminar requirements outlined above.

• All senior majors write a thesis and complete an oral defense of the thesis through enrollment in POLS H400.

Senior Project Assessment

Students are assessed based upon their proposal, their written thesis, their oral defense, and their performance throughout the thesis process. They are evaluated according to several criteria, including:

• their conceptualization of a research question.
• their ability to effectively and concisely present their argument and findings.
• their ability to draw conclusions and extensions of their research to broader arenas.
• their engagement with secondary material and use of primary sources.
• their ability to identify, critique, develop, and apply core concepts and theories.
• their ability to obtain a basic understanding of research methodologies.
• their ability to comprehend and respond to questioning.
• the quality and organization of their writing.
• the timely submission of work and responsiveness to feedback.
• the originality of their ideas and the ambition of their project.
• the breadth of their knowledge related to their thesis topic.
• the depth of their knowledge related to their thesis topic.
• their comprehension of the scope and limitations of their own research.

During the fall semester, students receive feedback from their professor and their peers on various assignments that often include a combination of the following: thesis proposal, annotated bibliography and literature review. The presentation of the thesis proposal in the fall semester is an opportunity for members in the department other than the advisor to weigh in on and evaluate a student’s progress. The feedback received in the fall from fellow students and the department faculty at the thesis proposal defense is beneficial for students as they move ahead with their projects in the spring.

Throughout the spring semester students receive feedback from their thesis advisor through regular meetings and comments on thesis drafts. The schedule for the submission of drafts and individual meetings in the spring semester is determined by the student and his/her advisor. Prior to the oral defense of the thesis in May each student submits a thesis abstract. This abstract is an important element of the defense in that it is designed to serve as a succinct overview of the thesis argument and methodology. The defense is attended by the student, the thesis advisor, and one other member of the department faculty. After the defense, the two faculty members discuss the student’s project and overall performance. Ultimate responsibility for grading of the thesis (POLS H400) belongs to the supervising faculty member.

Requirements for Honors
The department awards honors to senior majors who have demonstrated excellence in their coursework in political science and their senior thesis. The department may grant high honors to a select number of senior majors who have attained an outstanding level of distinction in their political science courses and senior thesis.

Concentrations and Interdisciplinary Minors
The department contributes to multiple concentrations, including those in Peace, Justice, and Human Rights; Middle Eastern and Islamic Studies; African and Africana Studies; Latin American, Iberian, and Latino Studies; and Gender and Sexuality Studies.

Study Abroad
The department encourages students to spend a semester or a year studying abroad. Credit for courses taken abroad will be determined on a case-by-case basis. Students will need to provide documentation about the content (e.g., syllabi, papers, and exams) of courses taken abroad.

No more than two study-abroad courses per semester (four courses per year) can be counted towards the political science major.

Research and Fieldwork
Faculty have conducted research in Latin America, Africa, the Middle East, and Asia, and students have had opportunities to assist faculty members with field research in places like Guatemala and Mali. The department encourages students to supplement their classroom work by studying abroad or applying for a grant from the College’s Center for Peace and Global Citizenship (https://www.haverford.edu/cpgc) to undertake internships in other countries.

Prizes
The department awards up to five prizes annually:

The Emerson L. Darnell 1940 Prize Fund: Named in honor of Emerson Darnell, a Quaker alumnus who dedicated his life’s work to advocating peaceful social change and defending the civil rights of the individual. The prize is awarded annually to the student who presents the best paper demonstrating an appreciation of the Bill of Rights as the foundation of American law and the very fabric of American society.

The Harold P. Kurzman Prize: Awarded for the senior who has performed the best and most creatively in political science coursework.

The Stephen H. Miller Memorial Award: Presented in honor of Stephen H. Miller ’62, who lost his life while serving his country and his fellow man in South Vietnam while taking part in village development as a member of the United States Information Agency. This award is presented to the graduating senior in political science who best exemplifies the ideal of political involvement and social service expressed in Miller’s life and career.

The Herman M. Somers Prize in Political Science: Given in recognition of the research and teaching of Red Somers. Awarded to the graduating senior(s) who presents the best senior project that reflects the interest in policy, respect for evidence, and the humane concern for improving society that characterized Somers’ work.
The Harvey Glickman Prize: Awarded to the graduating senior in Political Science whose senior thesis displays the greatest innovation in pushing the theoretical boundaries of the discipline and its subfields.

Courses

POLS H121 AMERICAN POLITICS (1.0 Credit)
Zachary Oberfield
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
This course examines the dynamics of the political process as seen in the Congress, the Presidency, and the judiciary. It also focuses on the roles that interest groups, public opinion, the media, and political parties and elections play in the American political system.
(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every Semester)

POLS H131 INTRODUCTION TO COMPARATIVE POLITICS (1.0 Credit)
Anita Isaacs
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
An introduction to basic concepts and themes in comparative politics analyzed through case studies. Themes include political authority and governance structures; political culture and identity politics; political participation and representation; and political economy.
(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every Fall)

POLS H151 INTERNATIONAL POLITICS (1.0 Credit)
Barak Mendelsohn
Division: Social Science
This course offers an introduction to the study of international politics. It considers examples from history and addresses contemporary issues, while introducing and evaluating the political theories that have been used by scholars to explain those events. The principal goal of the course is to develop a general set of analytical approaches that can be used to gain insight into the nature of world politics – past, present, and future.
(Offered: Spring 2022; typically offered: Every Year)

POLS H161 THE POLITICS OF GLOBALIZATION (1.0 Credit)
Craig Borowiak
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
An introduction to the major academic and policy debates over globalization and global governance. Key themes will include: sovereignty, free/fair trade; immigration; anti-globalization and violence; democratic governance and international economic institutions; and the global justice movement.
(Offered: Spring 2022; typically offered: Every Year)

POLS H171 INTRODUCTION TO POLITICAL THEORY (1.0 Credit)
Paulina Ochoa Espejo
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
An introduction to central concepts of political life through exploring the questions and problems surrounding democratic freedom, power, authority and citizenship. Reading from ancient, modern, and contemporary sources, literary as well as philosophical, American as well as European, will be included.
(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every Fall)

POLS H205 BORDERS, IMMIGRATION, AND CITIZENSHIP (1.0 Credit)
Paulina Ochoa Espejo
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
A survey of contemporary theories of citizenship, borders and immigration. We will ask who should be a member of a political community, and whether states have a right to exclude immigrants. The course will draw examples from current events. Prerequisite(s): One Intro Political Science course, or instructor consent.

(Offered: Spring 2022; typically offered: Every other Year)

POLS H207 INJUSTICES AND RESISTANCE (1.0 Credit)
Thomas Donahue
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
What are the major injustices of our time? Race, gender, class, sweatshops, animal exploitation? What are the harms done by these and other injustices, and how can we remedy them? What makes something a social injustice, and who is responsible for dealing with it? Are animals the victims of a massive injustice? This course examines leading theories of human and animal injustices that deal with these matters. Our aim is to give students the tools to build their own theory about these and other alleged injustices.
(Typically offered: Occasionally)

POLS H208 POLITICAL THOUGHT IN THE GLOBAL SOUTH: THE CASE OF LATIN AMERICA (1.0 Credit)
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
What impact did the conquest and colonization of the Americas have on modern political thought? How did European thinkers describe Indigenous peoples, and how did they deploy the figure of “the native” in their works? In this course, we will take a critical approach to canonical thinkers such Hobbes, Locke, and Rousseau by focusing on how they approached issues of colonialism and indigeneity. Drawing on insights from Indigenous, Black, and postcolonial theory we will explore how prominent issues in modern political thought (including theories of freedom, the social contract, natural law, progress, and individual rights) look different from vantage points outside of Europe. We will have a particular emphasis on works from and about Latin America. The course is broken up into three major sections. First, we begin with a selection of works that provide a framework for thinking about colonialism, race, and modernity. We then turn to a selection of canonical works in modern political thought, each paired with a contemporary piece of analysis. Finally, we end with a series of broader thematic readings on capitalism, liberalism, sovereignty, and modernity.
(Typically offered: Every other Year)
POLS H225 URBAN SOCIAL MOVEMENTS IN THE UNITED STATES (1.0 Credit)
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
Analysis of grassroots organizing and protest in American cities involving racial and/or economic justice. Case studies of mobilization around labor rights, civil rights, immigration, gentrification, and criminal justice reform.
(Typically offered: Occasionally)

POLS H226 SOCIAL MOVEMENT THEORY (1.0 Credit)
Steve McGovern
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
Theoretical analysis of origins and development of mass-based protest movements in the U.S. Scholarly explanations of recruitment of individuals, modes of organization and leadership, strategies and tactics, countermovements, and the impact of movements on policy and politics.
(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every other Fall)

POLS H227 URBAN POLITICS (1.0 Credit)
Steve McGovern
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
Examines who wields power in American cities amidst broad social and economic change. Includes both historical and contemporary analysis of urban politics, with close attention to the influence of race, ethnicity, and class.
(Typically offered: Every other Fall)

POLS H228 URBAN POLICY (1.0 Credit)
Steve McGovern
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
Assessment of public policies aimed at revitalizing U.S. cities following several decades of suburbanization and capital disinvestment. Focus on economic development, housing and community development, environmental protection, transportation, education, crime, and the management of regional sprawl.
(Typically offered: Every other Spring)

POLS H233 PERSPECTIVES ON CIVIL WAR (1.0 Credit)
While interstate wars have declined in number over the past century, civil wars within states have risen to become a major threat both within countries and across borders. This course will study the causes and consequences of such conflict as well as the potential ways that outside actors can manage such conflict.

POLS H235 AFRICAN POLITICS (1.0 Credit)
Susanna Wing
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
Analysis of political change in Africa from the colonial period to contemporary politics. Selected case studies will be used to address central themes including democracy, human rights, gender, interstate relations, economic development, and globalization. Prerequisite(s): one course in political science or consent of the instructor.
(Typically offered: Every other Year)

POLS H242 WOMEN IN WAR AND PEACE (1.0 Credit)
Susanna Wing
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
Analysis of the complex issues surrounding women as political actors and the ways in which citizenship relates to men and women differently. Selected cases from the United States, Africa, Latin America, and Asia are studied as we discuss gender, domestic politics, and international relations from a global perspective. Prerequisite(s): one course in POLS or instructor consent
(Offered: Spring 2022; typically offered: Every Year)

POLS H246 INTERNATIONAL CRISIS (1.0 Credit)
Staff
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
This course will investigate how states, leaders, and publics interact during times of international crisis. In addition to studying theoretical and empirical research about diplomacy and the use of force, students will design and engage in multiple simulations across various states and issues to experience the challenges of decision-making during such crises. Prerequisite(s): One course in Political Science
(Typically offered: Occasionally)

POLS H248 AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY (1.0 Credit)
Staff
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
(Typically offered: Occasionally)

POLS H253 INTRODUCTION TO TERRORISM STUDIES (1.0 Credit)
Barak Mendelsohn
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
After being marginalized in international relations scholarship for years, in the aftermath of 9/11 terrorism has moved to the forefront of scholarly interest. The purpose of this course is to survey the various theories concerning terrorism from diverse perspectives employing rationalist and psychological theories to explain terrorism-related phenomena.

(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every other Year)

POLS H261 GLOBAL CIVIL SOCIETY AND TRANSNATIONAL ACTIVISM (1.0 Credit)
Craig Borowiak

Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World

An introduction to the concept of civil society and how social movements, NGOs and social networks organize across national borders. Attention will be paid both to theory and to particular case studies, including the global justice movement, international human rights advocacy networks, international development NGOs, and transnational environmental activism, among other possibilities.

(Typically offered: Every other Year)

POLS H262 GRASSROOTS ECONOMIES: CREATING LIVELIHOODS IN AN AGE OF URBAN INEQUALITY (1.0 Credit)
Craig Borowiak

Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World

Examines how grassroots economic initiatives rooted in mutual aid often fill the gaps generated by urban inequality. Case studies range from guerrilla gardens to artist collectives, with particular focus on Philadelphia. The course also includes outreach and visual studies components. Prerequisite(s): Priority in registration will be given to students participating in the Philly Program (https://www.haverford.edu/philly-program) and Political Science majors. Remaining seats are available to other Tri-Co students, by lottery, if demand exceeds remaining spaces in the course. If you are interested in the Philly Program, you must fill out the application, which is due on Thursday, April 30th at 5 pm. This program includes registering for the program’s core course, Race and Place: A Philadelphia Story (SOCT 048I) and either this course (POLS H262) or The Nature of Public Art and the Ethics of Commemoration (PHIL B234). You will be notified by Monday, April 6 if you have been accepted into the program. Those not participating in the Philly program do not need to complete the application and can simply pre-register for the class. The Friday block is an occasional meeting time for program students only.

(Typically offered: Every other Year)

POLS H263 TECHNOLOGY AND INTERNATIONAL SECURITY (1.0 Credit)
Barak Mendelsohn

Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World

How does technology affect international security? This course will examine the different technological developments of the past several decades – drones, cyberspace, social media – and the manner in which they affect how states perceive security threats, fight, gather intelligence, and conduct deterrence and coercion efforts.

(Offered: Spring 2022; typically offered: Every other Year)

POLS H265 CAPITALISM AND THE HISTORY OF POLITICAL ECONOMIC THOUGHT (1.0 Credit)
Craig Borowiak

Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World

Theoretical approach to the role of politics and markets in modern societies. Draws from the history of political economic thought to evaluate the modern capitalist system and its critics. Key authors include the Mercantilists, Adam Smith, anarchist authors, Karl Marx, Karl Polanyi, F.A. Hayek, J.M. Keynes, and Milton Friedman. Prerequisite(s): One political science course or instructor consent

(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every other Year)

POLS H266 SOVEREIGNTY (1.0 Credit)
Paulina Ochoa Espejo

Division: Social Science

Questions about the meaning and scope of sovereignty emerge in debates in international relations over globalization, in debates in jurisprudence over constitutionalism and adjudication, and in debates in political philosophy over authority and legitimacy. In this course we will examine different conceptions of sovereignty in the light of these debates. In our class discussions, we will analyze theories that we will then apply to historical and contemporary political problems.

(Typically offered: Every other Year)

POLS H271 COMPARATIVE AND TRANSNATIONAL STUDIES: FROM KUALA LUMPUR TO KANSAS CITY (1.0 Credit)
Thomas Donahue

Division: Social Science
Domain(s): A: Meaning, Interpretation (Texts); B: Analysis of the Social World

How do we make sense of a globalizing world and its workings? This course, which is the gateway to the proposed minor in Comparative & Transnational Studies is for students who are intrigued by that question. So we examine ideas, institutions, processes in transnational perspective, looking at how important phenomena were shaped and re-shaped as they were passed around the globe and reinterpreted by various actors. We also consider various comparisons of phenomena across countries, cultures, and areas, taking note of how and when they show us similarities we had ignored, or differences we had missed.

(Offered: Spring 2022; typically offered: Every Fall)

POLS H274 ENDS AND MEANS: MORAL CHOICES IN POLITICS (1.0 Credit)

Thomas Donahue

Division: Social Science

Can politics be moral? Can the end justify the means? Examines how to make moral choices in politics, and the moral dilemmas it poses, by scrutinizing how great theories answered these questions, including Machiavelli, Thoreau, Martin Luther King, Jr., Malcolm X, Camus, Sartre, Dewey, Trotsky, Rosa Luxemburg, Reinhold Niebuhr, and Elizabeth Anscombe. A special focus on the ethics of war.

(Offered: Spring 2022; typically offered: Every Three Years)

POLS H277 INTRODUCTION TO QUANTITATIVE RESEARCH METHODS IN POLITICAL SCIENCE (1.0 Credit)

Jack Hasler

Division: Quantitative; Social Science

Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World

Introduces students to the quantitative analysis of politics. Students will learn how to formulate a research question, design a research project, find a relevant dataset, produce descriptive statistics and visualizations, and conduct basic statistical analysis.

Prerequisite(s): One introductory course in political science

(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Occasionally)

POLS H283 AFRICAN POLITICS, AFRICAN NOVELS AND FILM (1.0 Credit)

Susanna Wing

Division: Social Science

The study of politics in Africa through African literature. We explore themes including colonial legacies, gender, race and ethnicity, religion and political transition as they are discussed in African literature. Crosslisted: Political Science, Africana Studies

Prerequisite(s): One previous course in political science or instructor consent

(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every other Year)

POLS H284 ORGANIZATIONS, MISSIONS, CONSTRAINTS: SOCIAL JUSTICE WORK IN THEORY AND PRACTICE (1.0 Credit)

Division: Social Science

The course focuses on honing skills of analysis, research, and institutional literacy that are useful to any student seeking to work in a mission-driven organization, internationally or locally. Students conduct semester-long research project on an organization relevant to their interests. Crosslisted: Peace, Justice and Human Rights, Political Science

Prerequisite(s): PEAC 101 or PEAC 201 or a POLS course or instructor consent

(Offered: Spring 2022; typically offered: Every other Year)

POLS H287 THE POLITICS OF FREEDOM (1.0 Credit)

Division: Social Science

We cover a number of seminal debates in political theory by way of analyzing the relationship between freedom and politics. We will encounter thinkers who believe in the liberating potential of politics as well as those who hold that politics and freedom are continually at odds. The first half of the course addresses questions including: What is freedom? What is slavery? What is the relationship between freedom and other values, such as equality and democracy? Should we make laws to protect it or, conversely, protect it from the law? We then enter a number of current and historical debates that implicate these questions about: mass incarceration; free speech on and off campus; immigration; homelessness; and the structure of the family.

Readings include: Hannah Arendt, Frederick Douglass, Angela Davis, John Locke, Friedrich von Hayek, Rosa Luxemburg, Danielle Allen, Philip Pettit, Tommie Shelby, and George Orwell.

(Typically offered: Occasionally)

POLS H288 GOVERNING THE GLOBAL ECONOMY IN TIMES OF CRISIS (1.0 Credit)

Craig Borowiak

Division: Social Science

Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World

An examination of how the global economy is governed and how governance bodies have responded to and/or been complicit in crises and their aftermaths. Critical attention will be paid to power asymmetries in the international system and their consequences. Particular focus will be paid to the history and politics of global finance. Other cases might include the international governance of intellectual property rights, digital governance, and international trade regimes, among other possibilities.

Prerequisite(s): One political science course or instructor consent
POLS H289 IMMIGRATION POLITICS AND POLICY (1.0 Credit)
Anita Isaacs
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
Examines the causes and rights of forced migrants and refugees along with the responses and responsibilities of the international community. Focus on Mexico and Central America. Prerequisite(s): One political science course or instructor consent
(Offered: Spring 2022; typically offered: Every other Year)

POLS H292 TURKISH POLITICS (1.0 Credit)
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
The proposed course focuses on the structure and evolution of Turkish politics from the end of the Ottoman Empire till the present. Special attention is given to Turkey's shift from secularism to Islamism over the last three decades.
(Typically offered: Occasionally)

POLS H301 DEVELOPMENT, HUMAN RIGHTS, AND TRANSNATIONAL INJUSTICES (1.0 Credit)
Thomas Donahue
Division: Social Justice; Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
What are the worldwide obstacles to peace and justice? How can we surmount them? This course examines theories of some of the leading obstacles to peace and justice worldwide, and of what global citizens can do about them. The three obstacles we consider are colonialism and its legacies, whether we live in a global racial order, and whether the global economic order harms the poor and does them a kind of violence. The two solutions we will consider are the project of economic and social development, and the practice of human rights. The course aims, first, to give students some of the knowledge they will need to address these problems and be effective global citizens. Second, to understand some of the major forces that shape the present world order. Third and finally, to hone the skills in analysis, theory-building, and arguing that are highly valued in legal and political advocacy, in public life and the professions, and in graduate school. Crosslisted: Independent College Programs, Political Science
(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every other Fall)

POLS H315 PUBLIC POLICY ANALYSIS (1.0 Credit)
Zachary Oberfield
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
Using theories drawn from a variety of subfields, this course helps students develop a deeper understanding of how public policy is made. It also introduces students to policy analysis: the art and science of providing problem-solving advice to policymakers. Prerequisite(s): Junior or senior standing or instructor consent
(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every Fall)

POLS H318 CONTEMPORARY POLITICAL IDEAS AMID GLOBAL TRANSFORMATIONS (1.0 Credit)
Paulina Ochoa Espejo
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): A: Meaning, Interpretation (Texts); B: Analysis of the Social World
This course examines how contemporary political ideas and movements, like nations, global solutions, or solidarity are affected by the global transformations that are now underway in the wake of COVID-19. We will explore how these transformations are reshaping these ideas, in light of the particular interests of students in the course.
(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every Fall)

POLS H320 DEMOCRACY IN AMERICA (1.0 Credit)
Steve McGovern
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
This seminar explores some of the most pressing challenges to American democracy today, including the intensification of ideological and partisan polarization, increasing economic inequality, ongoing constraints faced by marginalized groups, and concerns about the diminishing quality of citizen participation in politics.
(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every Fall)

POLS H330 TOPICS IN COMPARATIVE POLITICS (1.0 Credit)
Susanna Wing
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
This is a workshop course built around student interests and senior thesis topics. We will explore issues including, but not limited to, ethnicity, religion, gender and the state. We will look at how states pursue both political and economic development and how they cope with violent conflict.
Prerequisite(s): Three courses in POLS AND junior or senior status, or instructor consent
(Offered: Fall 2021; typically offered: Every Fall)

POLS H332 SHORT OF WAR: DETERRENCE AND COMPELLENCE IN INTERNATIONAL POLITICS (1.0 Credit)
Barak Mendelsohn
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
The course examines the way international relations' theory addresses policies short of war, particularly the security policies states use to promote their political and strategic objectives, to dissuade rivals from attacking, to manage crisis situations, and to promote peaceful resolution to interstate conflicts.
Prerequisite(s): One political science course or instructor permission
(Typically offered: Every other Fall)

POLS H333 INTERNATIONAL SECURITY (1.0 Credit)
Barak Mendelsohn
Division: Social Science
Domain(s): B: Analysis of the Social World
This course offers an introduction to the study of international security. It considers examples from history and addresses contemporary issues, while introducing and evaluating the political theories that have been used by scholars to explain those events. The principal goal of the course is to develop a general set of analytical approaches that can be used to gain insight into the nature of world politics - past, present and future. The first section introduces key conceptual issues and review main theoretical approaches in the field. The second section addresses specific issues in international security such as war, military doctrines, alliances, crisis, deterrence, grand strategy, and proliferation.
(Typically offered: Every other Fall)
